A guide to the Subway

Current at October 2009

The Subway provides a fast and reliable way of getting around Glasgow's city centre. During peak times there's a Subway train every four minutes calling at each of the 15 stations on the double circular route north and south of the river. Park and Ride facilities are offered at three of the stations and there are direct links to the national rail network at Partick and Buchanan Street stations.

It's the world's third oldest Subway, opened in 1896 after only London and Budapest. Today, it's one of the most punctual systems in Europe and is a crucial link in Glasgow's transport infrastructure, carrying over 14 million passengers a year.
